FOR WAR QUOTA

Officials Discuss Parade and Celebration for Drafted Men of District.

A patriotic parade and celebration honor of the 1,022 members of the district quota in the national army will be held on the day the drafted men are called to the colors to leave for the concentration cantonments, present plans indicate. The War Department, Commissioners Louis Brownlow and Brig. Gen. J. G. D. Knight, A. L. Sinclair, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and repre-sentative citizens of the city will back the movement. To make tentative plans for the demonstration, Commissioner Brown-low will today talk informally to the other Commissioners and to officials of the District. It is expected that by nightfull definite ideas for the pro-tion of the affair will be evolved.

Fears that the District men would not leave on the same day or that they might be ordered to leave the secretly were almost totally dispelled late yesterday when a high of-ficial of the War Department said that he department is striving to he District men together as a It was said that everything possible that is in line with military policies will be done to please the people of the city and to afford them a chance to pay homage to the men who are leaving their homes to do the District's share in the defense of the ountry.
This is taken to mean that the departure of the District quota will be open and shoveboard and will be carried out publicly and that ample time to permit the organizing of a popular demonstration will be given.

There is one point upon which the two ends of Pennsylvania avenue meet—both believe that the end is not far off. The White House and the State, War and Navy departments are almost hourly being confirmed in their impression that the German bolt has been shot.

The differences of opinion between the two wings of the government is looked upon here as a possible inspiration for the President to go to Congress and reiterate his position.

No surprise in official circles greeted the publication of the first installments of Ambassador Gerard's book on Germany in the wary yesterday. It was known at the State Detartment that some kind of confidential message passed from the Kaiser to President Wilson shortly after the fateful first of August, 1914. The President has religiously refused to reveal the contents of that note.

One reason for the reticence of the President is ascribed here to his lack of desire to publish a document whose strictures on England and Sir Edward Grey are so plain. He was at first constrained against such a step by considerations of neutrality. Latterly he has been unwilling to offen.
